U. S. Naval Experts Inspect Submarine Liner

CAPTAIN OF U-CRAFT YIELDS

Baltimore, Md., July 11.—United States naval experts, after a vigorous controversy, today made a detailed examination of the German super-submarine Deutschland after her record-breaking trans-oceanic trip.

Under instructions from Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, the U. S. Navy sent the submarine to the Naval Air Station at Annapolis, Md., where it was met by Captain C. E. Hughes, Lieutenant-Commander J. O. Fisher and Naval Constructor H. S. Howard of the Navy Department to inspect the vessel.

The German experts took the position that the examination of the submarine should be limited to the super-submarine construction which would enable her to go on the surface and declared the country's right to build such submarines without definite instructions from the representative of the German government in this country.

The United States officials declared that the examination was a part of the official duty and must proceed. A British naval officer, Captain A. H. King of the submarine, Paul Hink, representing the Ocean-Undersea Service of the Deutschland and Thetis, was present. The British Lloyd's Line went into conference to determine whether it would oppose an inspection of the submarine.

At the most interesting clip in the carefully laid German plan for a great diplomatic struggle to break the British-French blockade, based on the fact that the German submarines and German agents moved slowly, Captain Koenig had already announced his intention of allowing Captain Hughes to make a search of the vessel. The agents of the Line later called the skipper of the Line to their office for a conference.

There is something in the position of the German submarine, as the conference began, as to the right of an American ship to search the vessel of our vessel. We will continue on Page 8, Column 2.

DIVORCE

Judge John Kivel, who heard the Carpenter divorce case in Concord, N. H., filed today at Ossipee, N. H., a decree granting a divorce to Ralph G. Carpenter from Marguerite Paul Carpenter.

There was no decree as to alimony. Judge Kivel announced that he would hear arguments later as to the question of the custody of the child, Ralph G. Carpenter, Jr., the little figure about whom the real fight between Mr and Mrs. Carpenter hinged.

MASS. SENSATION.

The "Carpenter case" has furnished sensational developments one after another since that day last Fall when Ralph Carpenter, in a fast automobile, sped into Magnolia, whipped his son from his mother's side into the car, and whisked the boy away to New Hampshire.

Mrs. Carpenter's fight to regain custody of her son began at once. Her first move failed when the court refused to allow her custody of the boy; her second, an effort to get the boy home for Christmas, also failed.

When Mrs. Carpenter then filed a divorce suit making grave charges against his wife, and after many postponements, the case came to trial in

The trial was a long one, and much of the time was occupied by the testimony of Ralph Carpenter and his wife. Each gave direct testimony at length, and each was cross-examined with the utmost vigor, leading attorneys in New Hampshire being ranged against each other in the case.

Carpenter's demand for a divorce was based on the testimony of himself and others that at the Magnolia cottage his wife had been seen to kiss and embrace the Garrison G. Depew and J. Gould Day.

Depew and Day were in court daily and took the stand when their turn

WED WHILE STUDENT.
George A. Carpenter, father of Ralph G. Carpenter, was the moving spirit in the divorce suit, Mrs. Carpenter charged. She claimed the elder Carpenter had repeatedly tried to win her boy away from her, and that he had incurred the breach between her husband and herself.

George Carpenter and his son, as a firm, are engaged in real estate operations in Boston, and their holdings are valued at $1,000,000. Their rental alone, Ralph Carpenter testified, are over half a million dollars a year.

Young Carpenter's testimony as to his finances equalled in interest his accusations against his wife. He said he had only what money his father gave him, but gave figures on that showing his expenditure of a large sum during the past few years.

Constance and Mrs. Carpenter were married while he was still a student at Harvard.

Why Physicians Prefer It to Drugs

Only those in constant touch with nature, from infrequent and dangerous can fully realize the harm done by the improper use of drugs and artificial stimulants. A well known New York physician recently, personally I deeply appreciate the use of drugs in the treatment of dyspepsia or stomach trouble, for in practically every instance I have known the underlying cause to be economic, and the remedy to be found in the use of the stomachic.

In case of the food contents of the stomach, I invariably recommend the use of Magnesia.

Shame, Says Mr. Hearst, to Refuse U. S. Aid to Guardsmen's Families

New York, July 11, 1916.

To the Editor of the Boston American:

It is a crying shame that the Democratic administration at Washington should have refused to provide for the families of the National Guardsmen who went to the front.

If a citizen can stand ready to give his life for the service of the country, the least the country can do is to be willing to take care of his family.

This Republic does not desire to maintain and support a great professional standing army.

This government should depend for its protection not on a professional standing army which the government supports, but on the whole citizenship which supports the government.

There is no democracy in maintaining a great standing army to be the servant of those in power. A better democracy would consist in creating an armed and trained citizenry who would be the masters of those in power.

A professional army, always under pay from the government, requires no unusual pay or pension or special consideration for dependent families during war.

Fighting is the regular and only business of such an army and it is for that purpose that they are being paid in war and in peace.

Fighting is not the regular business of a citizen soldiery. Their regular business is the conduct of the business of the nation. Their incomes and activities are assessed for the maintenance of the Government.

Fighting is the exceptional occupation of a citizen soldiery undertaken in times of emergency for purely patriotic purposes.

When, therefore, war comes, and these citizen soldiers leave their business and leave their families and go forth to risk their lives as well as their occupations and enterprises for the protection of the Government and of the whole people, the smallest return that a government can make for such heroic self-sacrifice is to provide for the beloved families which these citizen soldiers leave behind them.

These citizen soldiers do not want to be, and should not have to be, dependent upon the private charity of their employers.

On the other hand, the employers should not want, and should not be able, to buy a substitute for the service they themselves owe their country by contributing, no matter how generously, to the financial support of others.

The duty which the employer owes his country, and which he should not be able to evade, is to serve in the ranks beside his employee.

The duty which the Government owes both employer and employee is to provide that military, economic and social preparedness which will offer the greatest measure of democratic equality and justice and which will arouse the deepest devotion of all the people to the beloved and beneficial institutions of a genuinely republican form of government.

Start South Tomorrow

Concord, N. H., July 11.—The New Hampshire contingent of National Guardsmen will start for the Mexican border tomorrow.

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Columbus, N. M., July 11.—Herbert Buse, twenty-five, a recruit in C Company of Worcester, Second Regiment, started today doing "punishment" duty in his company for permitting a prisoner, whom he was guarding, to escape.

Buse was assigned to take the prisoner to meet. His company was on picket duty. At supper time there was a shortage of men and Buse was called upon to take charge of the prisoner.

The regulation punishment for allowing a prisoner to escape is six months in a penitentiary together with a $50 fine. The court-martial was held on June 25, and the failure of his superiors to instruct him properly. He was sentenced to punishment detail, instead.

Buse, with others of his company, was doing interior duty after a night on outpost. He was assigned to the stockade to guard the prisoners. He was entrusted to take to supper the prisoner, a deserter who was coming out for confinement in a few days. The prisoner admitted that he did not intend to stay in any way.

Buse joined the Second Regiment three days before they left for the border. He was a clerk in a Worcester store. When Buse was ordered to take his man to supper he was merely told to see that the prisoner got something to eat. Instead of taking his prisoner to the man's own mess, he was guided by what the prisoner said and the two landed at the casual mess.

He was a clerk in a Worcester store. When Buse was ordered to take his man to supper he was merely told to see that the prisoner got something to eat. Instead of taking his prisoner to the man's own mess, he was guided by what the prisoner said and the two landed at the casual mess.

Buse allowed his man to go into supper unaccompanied. He stood outside waiting for him. After a while when he looked for his man, he was gone. He started for the stockade to report the escape.

"Where's your man?" asked the sergeant. "Don't know," said Buse, frankly. "He went in to eat and I haven't seen him since." The colonel, when he was notified, the prisoner's own company was ordered out to comb the town, and telephone messages were sent in adjoining towns.

It was later learned that he jumped a passing freight which was due about the time he disappeared. Buse, throughout the trouble was frank and straightforward in his story. The man believed that he should not be so severely dealt with. The affair, however, caused considerable comment.

Captain George A. Roberts, whose company Buse furnished guard on outpost duty last night, was commiserated by Major Paraworth, rank and file, on the matter in which he and his men handled a "bad man."

on the outskirts in the middle of the night, shortly after midnight, Captain Roberts was patrolling the outskirts and heard several shots to the southeast.

He sent two men to investigate the shots. A few moments later the men returned with a regular who was intoxicated. The man had found him shouting wildly and had commanded him to hand over his gun, which he did after a struggle.

The man was abusive and it took three men to calm him. During the excitement he shouted at Captain Roberts "I'll get you." Captain Roberts paid no heed to the remark and was talking to his men when the prisoner requested the captain to come over where he was in the stockade. The captain did so. The prisoner said, "Captain, I wish to apologise to you for the remark I made. I was intoxicated. Will you let me go to my tent and arrange a few things. You may send some one with me."

Captain Roberts detailed a "bushy" sergeant to accompany the man. Arriving at the tent, the sergeant stood outside while the prisoner went inside. Soon the man came out and was led back to the wire enclosure.

Captain Roberts was suspicious and suggested that the man be searched. Buse was a lucky move. The prisoner had tucked a keen automatic into his trousers leg and had carried it in his pocket. Captain Roberts only smiled when someone reminded him of the threat the prisoner had made a few moments before to "get him."

GIRL CAVE FIRST KISS, OTHERS WERE TAKEN

Clearfield, Pa., July 11.—"Miss Mary Haines," the girl who kissed 27 members of the Eighth Pennsylvania Infantry, missing only sixty-five, found herself Saturday morning, unaccompanied as it is to be, in the arms of a young man.

Her real name is Eliza Hughes and she lives with her two sisters at Clearfield and Williamstown. She is very pretty and this morning seemed very modest. She gave several of the soldiers' wives of her name, with a name and address, but the names were various and the addresses all those of empty lots.

Maybe it was my fault that I asked the first man," she said today, "but really, the other boys just would not let me go. They would kiss me and I had to be fair."

Some folks gave the boys good things to eat, and others gave them tobacco. I wanted to give them something, but I had nothing but kisses to give. And now it's all over. I don't believe there is a man in the Eighth Pennsylvania who will ever forget "Auntie."

LITERARY SUMMARY

The French have thrust forward their salient to within about a mile and a quarter of the city of Peronne, important railroad center, and the first goal of the allied drive in Picardy.

The Somme River is now the chief obstacle in their path, if they hope to capture the city. But it is probable that supplementary attacks at other points in the line will first be made, since their salient is already dangerously extended. The failure of the British to advance, to the northward, has left their left flank exposed.

The French announced today strenuous attacks by the Germans in the Verdun region. The Germans gained temporary success, but were later evicted from the trenches they had conquered, the French say.

The British officially report today the recapture of Contaminated, which they took the first day of their drive, and later lost under German counter attack. At this section of the line the British have made their most considerable gain, cutting off a salient that extended southwestward into their lines when the offensive began. Their advance here is about two miles.

Even Petrograd does not claim that much has been accomplished on the Russian front in today's official report, and the Italian bulletin deals with unimportant activities.

From, from which came a cloud of dust, the British troops moved forward, and the German line was broken. The British troops moved forward, and the German line was broken.

Three Million Auto Tires made—by GOODRICH, in year 1915

The more Tires WE make, —the LESS they cost You!

THREE Million Auto Tires, made by Goodrich, in latest fiscal year of 1915! —With a huge increase, thus far, for 1916.

Three Million Tires for Pleasure Cars, and Trucks, combined—exclusive of Motor-Cycle, Bicycle, and Carriage Tires.

A million more of such Tires than were made, sold, or even claimed, by other Rubber Concern in America, during its latest fiscal year.

A Fifty Per Cent greater VOLUME than the next greatest.

One-fourth of ALL the Pleasure Car, and Truck, Tires made in America.

Deduct that Goodrich 3,000,000 from the total American Tire production of about 12,000,000 Tires in 1915.

Then divide the 199 (approximate) Makes and Brands, that compete with Goodrich, into the 9,000,000 residue.

You will thus find the average Volume of all competing Makes and Brands to be about 45,000 Tires Yearly, per Make or Brand.

Double that if you wish!

Triple it!—QUADRUPLE it!

Even then you would have an IMPRESSIVE Comparison of Volume,—and all that Volume means to Cost-of-production, per Tire.

How this Concerns YOU!

STUDY the Price-List publicly printed to left of this,—and See!

Compare with the List-Prices of other Tires made in LESSER Volume,—and See! Observe that competing Prices are higher in almost the exact proportion that VOLUME of production is smaller.

This, when Quality approaches the Goodrich Standard.

Our present Tire Output to One-third, and it would still far exceed the Average of all Competing Makes or Brands.

But, that huge reduction in Volume MIGHT result in every Tire we made costing you One-third MORE than present prices.

They would not,—and could not,—be BETTER, at this necessarily higher-cost to you, and higher-price to you.

Because,—Goodrich Tires are not made "up to a price,"—nor "down to a price."

WE, first of all, make the BEST Fabric Tires that our 47-year Experience in Rubber-Working,—our huge Purchasing-Power, and the most Advanced Equipment, render possible.

Then we let Cost fall where it will.

To that Cost we add a moderate, and fair, Profit for Ourselves and for our Dealers.

Then we let VOLUME rise,—as it will.

The more Tires we Make, the LESS each Tire COSTS us to produce, and costs YOU to buy.

The more Tires we Sell, the less profit, per Tire, WE NEED, for dividends.

The more Tires we make, the better we KNOW HOW to make them,—the more we have at Sticks on Quality,—and Satisfaction to Consumers.

And,—because of all this,—

—The BEST Fabric Tires that Skill,—Experience,—Good-Faith,—and Maximum Volume,—can build,—are now available to YOU at the VERY MODERATE Fair-List Prices here quoted.

Why pay more for ANY Fabric Tire?

GERMANS CONTEND THAT U-LINER'S TRIP SHOWS ALLIES' BLOCKADE ILLEGAL

GERMANY'S EPOCH-MAKING SUBMARINE AND DARING CREW THAT BROUGHT HER HERE; BROADSIDE VIEW OF DEUTSCHLAND TAKEN ON HER ARRIVAL

object to no proper inspection and was anxious to comply with every formality. We want to be sure that everything is legal. We must be certain that the law demands this inspection."

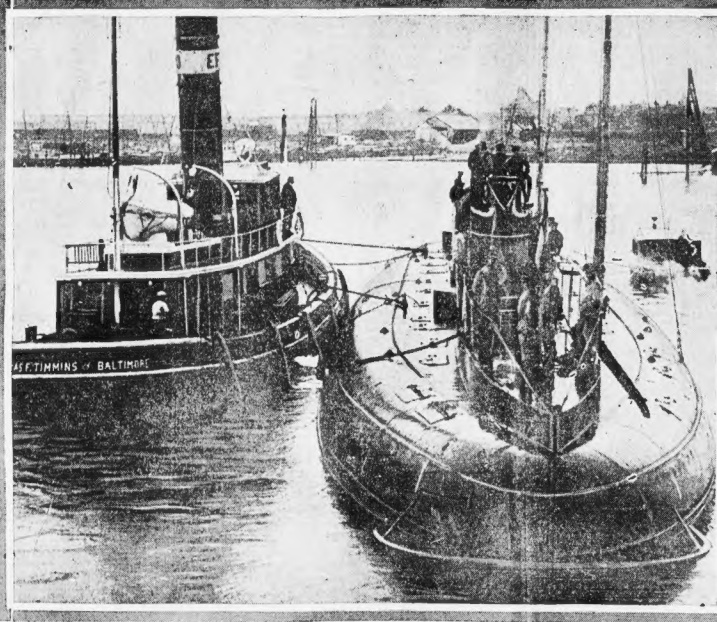

Captain Hughes conferred with Collector of Customs Ryan. The collector refused for the benefit of the naval officer the inspection of the Deutschland made by the port officials and the evidence upon which the collector recognized the submarine as a merchant vessel.

The German agents, in close touch with Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, made it clear that they proposed to produce the vessel at all hazards, and to make every effort to comply with the letter of the law in every particular.

"There is too much at stake to allow any ill-advised move," was the way one of the German line officials phrased it.

AMEMBASSADOR TO VISIT.

Preparations were made today for Count von Bernstorff to visit the submarine. Paul Hiltner, agent of the PHOTOGRAPHED BY THE HEARST-INTERNATIONAL PICTORIAL. This and other stirring pictures of the Deutschland's arrival will be shown in the Hearst-International News Pictorial. A view of the Deutschland, giving a graphic idea of her peculiar shape as seen from above. Beside her lies the tug Timmins, which waited twelve days for her off the Virginia Capes and then escorted her to Baltimore.

German line, said that the ambassador would inspect the ship and talk with Captain Koenig and the crew. It was apparent today that the German agents in Baltimore were conducting the German Embassy as to every ship in their work of proving the submarine a merchant vessel, and that every move was being carefully considered to the possible relations to the diplomatic struggle that depends upon fixing the status of the Deutschland. Long distance telephone wires in great demand as the two countries, one in the office of the German agent and the other in the customs house, exchanged views on the situation.

At the close of the customs house conference, Collector of Customs Ryan declared that he would inspect the Deutschland. He would go aboard the submarine. As contained by the collector, Captain Koenig stated for the ship, which the Deutschland is moored, taking a launch from the customs house. With Captain Hughes went Lieutenant Commander J. O. Fisher of the Bureau of Steam Engineering and H. B. Howard, an expert of the Bureau of Construction of the Navy Department. "We are going aboard the Deutschland," said Collector Ryan as the party left the customs house.

"Any official examination will only serve to emphasize the fact that my ship is a peaceful trader," declared Captain Koenig.

Two government inspectors will be kept on their board the submarine, one at night and one by day. It will be their duty to see that nothing not appearing on the manifest is taken from the boat and nothing is not properly passing through the customs house. The German agents, however, are making every effort to make the inspection as unobtrusive as possible. They are also making every effort to make the inspection as unobtrusive as possible.

is expected to make clear the diplomatic contention which Germany will press if it can be established that the Deutschland is a merchant vessel and entitled to all the privileges of a trader.

A masterpiece of world politics centered today about the closely guarded Deutschland, the first commercial ship to enter the United States since the outbreak of the war. As a result of the trip of the Deutschland it can be stated on authority that Germany plans to gain these things.

The admission by neutral countries that the British-German line of commerce is illegal under international law, and is one binding upon neutral trade.

It is a direct line of communication with the outside world free from interference by warships of the belligerent states.

A safe means of sending in the United States hundreds of millions of dollars worth of American securities now tied up in Germany in German credit, and aiding German domestic finance.

brought from Germany by the Deutschland and delivered direct to the Ambassador of Germany, who turned them to Ambassador von Bernstorff. Some of these dispatches undoubtedly bear upon the German diplomatic contentions as to the Deutschland. Some indication of the contents of the dispatches is expected from Count von Bernstorff soon.

The German interests here today center all their efforts on the task of establishing the merchant status of the new ship. Encouraged by the temporary acceptance by the customs officials and the Treasury Department of their contention, they are prepared to continue the struggle. They made it clear that the vessel of the Deutschland is a merchant ship, and that the vessel is a merchant ship.

The cargo of the Deutschland was the last important part of her trip. They made it clear that the vessel of the Deutschland is a merchant ship, and that the vessel is a merchant ship.

WILL BRING SECURITIES. "It will go as I came," said the little merchant skipper. "When we are ready to return to Germany we will steam out of the cape like any other ship. If the enemy fleet observe the rules of the game and stay outside of the three-mile limit we will make good our way to Germany."

Before the Deutschland starts for Germany her sister ship, the Bremen, will be on her way to the United States. German agents here declared today. They were unable to say the cargo of the Bremen will be, but it was surmised that she would have on board American securities to a large amount for sale in this country. The agents of the submarine line were bombarded today with demands for parts of the cargo of dry. They declared the entire amount had been consigned to A. Schumacher & Co., who would distribute it, and that all dry had already been allotted.

Applications for return passages were filed with the officials, two applicants offering to pay as high as $400. The applications were refused.

The little vessel will probably carry back a cargo of gold and rubber worth about $100,000. The submarine was closely guarded today and the greatest precautions were taken to prevent anyone from getting near enough to the vessel to discover any of the secret details of her construction. Captain Koenig posted a guard of husky German sailors all about the barred way ended dock and various strangers received sharp greetings.

sible formality," said Paul G. L. Hiltner of A. Schumacher & Co. "Every customs regulation and every navigation law of the United States has been fully met. The collector of the port of Baltimore has recognized the Deutschland as a merchant ship and the officials of the Treasury Department at Washington have accepted his statement.

"Surely there can be no reason why the State Department should take a different view. I am sure that a careful inspection will satisfy State Department officials that the Deutschland is a merchant vessel built and equipped for peaceful trading."

PLAN CELEBRATION.

Baltimore Germans prepared for a celebration of the arrival of the Deutschland. Captain Koenig was the recipient of scores of invitations to functions of all kinds, but he accepted only one—to an informal luncheon given the officials of the sea-lifeline. A committee of Baltimoreans, however, has arranged a day's celebration for the crew of the Deutschland. It is to be an all-day affair with a true German flavor, and will include an eating at a nearby shore resort. The crew has so far been kept close by confined to the dock where the submarine is moored, but Captain Koenig has promised to allow them a day off for festivities.

Disfiguring Humor Spread Over Face
Used Resinol. Skin New Beautiful!

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 7, 1915.
"A small red place covered with little white scales appeared beside my nose. Then it began to spread over both sides of my face and the scales cracked open, causing a terrible itching and burning. It was horrible looking and very embarrassing. I tried many salves, but nothing helped. I heard of Resinol Ointment and bought a box, and applied them as directed. The burning and itching sensation was relieved at once and in three weeks I was entirely cured. My face shows no sign of breaking out now. In fact, my skin is clearer and more beautiful."—Signed Miss Elsie D. Collins, 1229 E. Madison St.

ORPET ENRAGED CALLS LAYER FALSIFIER HEARST FILMS SHOW ARRIVAL OF U-BOAT

Waukegan, Ill., July 11.—Enraged by the verbal lashing he was receiving from Assistant States Attorney E. M. Runyard, Will Orpet, leaped from his chair and shouted:

"That man is lying. He is distorting the facts."

The youth's mother clutched his arm and begged him to sit down. Shortly after the incident the court declared a recess.

At the trial, Orpet was charged with the murder of Marian Lambert. Attorney Runyard said:

"I tell you, everyone, faithful to me, you can understand the cry of this man—not how he says it, but the meaning of it. This is the cardinal principle in his make-up—to protect himself. Self-protection and self-preservation at all hazards and no matter who is in the way—even to the extent of murder."

The prosecutor, striving by force of oratory to prove Marian Lambert's death a diabolically-planned murder, narrowly escaped a cunning trap laid by the defense to bring the trial to an end.

In the last minute of the preliminary statement by Attorney Runyard, the State was "tripped off" on the defense attorney's plan to waive argument and preclude further oratory for which R. J. Dady and D. R. Joslin, prosecutors in chief, have prime themselves. Unwary, the State might have announced the end of their opening argument—the usual procedure, where attorneys precede in their talk—and that would have been the cue for the Orpet attorney to formally announce to the court their waiver and ask immediate jury deliberation.

Before the defense had such a chance, States Attorney Runyard, on his feet with the announcement that he himself would continue the opening argument in the morning, Orpet's counsel laughingly demanded to know how many "openings" there would be.

"We had no such idea," denied James E. Williamson, chief of counsel for the defense. "The State's attorneys were simply alarmed in vain."

New York, July 11.—Last evening, in the best motion picture theatres of New York and adjacent States, the Hearst-International News Pictorial showed the first motion pictures of the now famous German submarine, the Deutschland, its daring captain, Paul Koenig, and its valiant crew, upon their arrival at the port of Baltimore.

This was fifteen hours after the great sea-wanderer had reached American waters, thus putting motion news pictures on a par with daily newspapers and accomplishing one of the most remarkable achievements in the history of news photography.

When the first flash came of the arrival of this super-submarine, Hearst-International camera men were dispatched from New York, Washington and Philadelphia.

FILMED IN RECORD TIME.
Arriving at Baltimore they immediately chartered a harbor tug and went out to meet the submarine and accompanied it into the harbor.

Thirty minutes after the craft had docked the photographers were on their way back to New York, carrying with them the first plates and film of the ship, which, by its remarkable journey, revolutionizes the commercial and marine history of the world.

The photographers were met in New York by a special automobile. The film was rushed to the Hearst-International factory, and a few hours later was flashed upon the screens of the leading New York theatres. Duplicate films were promptly dispatched East, West, North and South.

FRONT ON SCREEN.
The Hearst-International Pictorial has justified its title "The Newspaper of the Screen." Any person with a camera and care can produce a news reel showing the commonplace daily events, but when an event such as this takes place—when a flash is received of a story of this caliber—the Hearst-International News Pictorial has always proven its superiority on account of its connection with the greatest newspaper organization in the world.

Just as the Hearst newspapers have been in the pages of "Famous" which they have scored over rival publications, so the Hearst News Pictorial is proud of its achievement in showing first motion pictures of this history-making occurrence.

The motion pictures of the Deutschland will be shown this week in the regular news reel release of the Hearst-International News Pictorial.

The Great American Private School Directory Is on Every Newsstand Today

'August Cosmopolitan is literally an educational guide-book.

Forty pages are devoted solely to schools and colleges. Three hundred and twenty institutions describe themselves in this number.

Cosmopolitan reaches the million best families in the country.

That is why the most schools advertise in Cosmopolitan—why Cosmopolitan produces the most results for schools.

It is not a magazine for children, but all men and women who have the interests of their children at heart read and heed it.

Cosmopolitan is the most effective medium that the schools and colleges have yet found.

It is self-evident, therefore, that Cosmopolitan has an audience of broad and deep thinkers, far-sighted parents who value the worth and advantage of specialized instruction in establishments which investigate the antecedents of their pupils before entrance and exercise close control over their conduct and habits after admission.

If a school isn't advertised, it isn't likely to be an important school. All the leading private institutions and colleges reach the public through this magazine, which reaches practically everybody who can afford to give their children the advantages and protection of private instruction.

Cosmopolitan's Educational Bureau (which assisted 2,700 parents last year in the selection of reliable institutions for their boys and girls) will, upon request, provide any extra facts or figures concerning the 320 establishments advertised in this issue.

The service is free and priceless.

If the President Will Not, the Congress Should Maintain American Honor

THE duty of an American newspaper is to speak the sentiments of real Americans, and to speak those sentiments in plain, understandable and manly words.

The present situation in Mexico demands exactly that kind of speech. Nor shall we be deterred from that kind of speech by the fact that our government at Washington is responsible for the humiliating situation which makes real Americans ashamed to look a jeering alien in the face.

For the high office of the Chief Magistracy of this republic we feel a profound respect. For the individual who may happen to fill that high office we feel exactly such a measure of respect as his conduct in that high office warrants.

And most assuredly we do not feel any respect for Mr. Wilson's conduct of our relations with Mexico, nor do we believe that any American who holds the honor and the good repute of our dear country in love and respect can feel any respect for Mr. Wilson's conduct of our relations with Mexico.

For how is it possible for an American to respect policies which provoke the disrespect of aliens for our government and our people; which produce insult upon insult to our sovereignty and our flag; which neither protect the rights of American citizens abroad nor punish the murderers and torturers and abominable beasts who have killed American men and shamefully defiled American women and even little American children before murdering them?

We put restraint upon our utterance when we say simply that such policies on the part of our government are unbecoming, humiliating and profoundly unworthy of the respect of any American.

The shame and the indignation which you all feel, citizens, would indeed justify far harsher expression. But we restrain indignation that we may lay before you, in deliberate language, first the exact condition of our relations with Mexico and then what we conceive to be the duty of the representatives of the American people in Congress under that condition.

Mr. Wilson excuses and justifies his refusal to protect the rights and the lives of Americans lawfully resident in Mexico upon the ground that the government of the United States has no right to interfere with the doings of Mexicans in Mexico—not even when those doings consist of murder, rapine, outrage and destruction visited upon inoffensive Americans who went into Mexico under the implied protection of the constitution and laws of Mexico as well as the implied protection of their own government, the definite declarations of the Democratic platform, and the written and unwritten laws to which all civilized nations subscribe.

Yet, while professing to act upon this extraordinary and hitherto unheard-of theory of non-intervention, Mr. Wilson has done nothing ever since he took his seat but intervene and interfere in Mexico.

Steadily refusing to exert the authority and power of the United States to prevent or to punish the insults, murders and innumerable outrages inflicted upon American citizens, he has at the same time used the authority, the influence AND THE ARMED FORCES of the United States to pull down and to set up individual Mexican chiefs, struggling to obtain the military rule of that unhappy and distressed country.

Mr. Wilson directly interfered and intervened in the domestic affairs of Mexico in order to drive Victoriano Huerta from the presidency of Mexico and into exile.

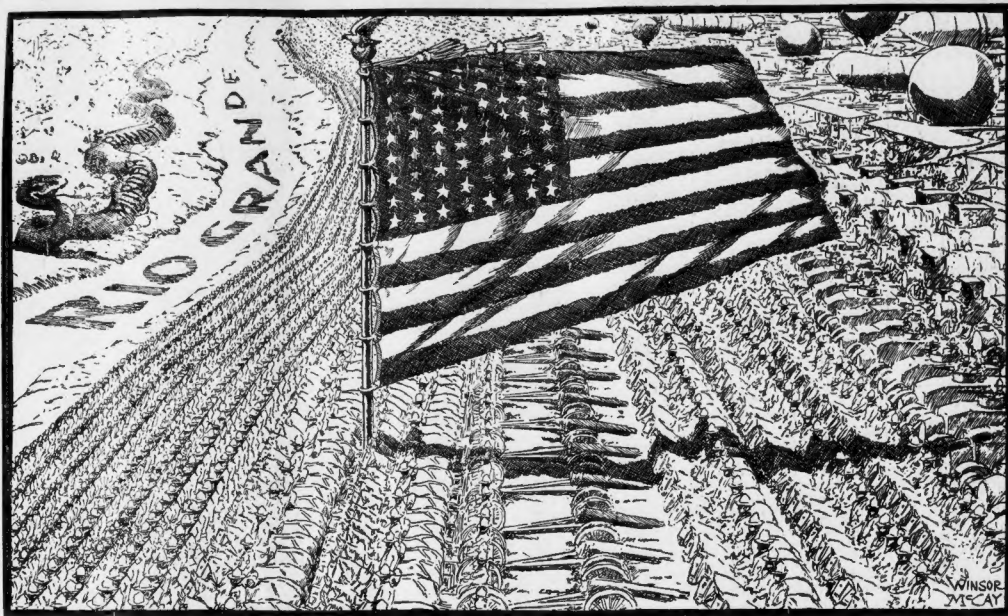

At the same time that he sent the warships and the soldiers of the United States to Vera Cruz to accomplish the expulsion of Huerta he excused this use of armed force upon the ground that Mexicans had fired upon a small boat flying the American flag, and that the honor of the United States demanded an apology and a salute of the flag.

We use this word "excused" deliberately and meaning an excuse only, for the record shows that as soon as the expulsion of Huerta had been accomplished our fleet and troops were withdrawn from Vera Cruz WITHOUT ANY APOLOGY HAVING BEEN OFFERED OR ANY SALUTE HAVING BEEN GIVEN TO OUR FLAG.

Mr. Wilson's use of the armed forces of the United States in Mexico at that time had for its object—or, at least, accomplished the object—the overthrow of Huerta in the interest of the military ascendancy of Venustiano Carranza and Francisco Villa.

And if the use of fleets and troops in a foreign country to pull down one aspirant to power and to set up another is not intervention in the affairs of that country, then we do not understand the meaning of English words.

Following this intervention by force and arms there was a long series of interventions by diplomatic methods, by the use of special agents—an office unauthorized by our Constitution or laws—and by an endless procession of notes, threats, ultimatums and protocols, of which it can only be said that the sum total of their results was to convince every Mexican that we were a nation of wordy braggarts who could be insulted and wronged with perfect impunity—that we were, in the full sense and import of the meanness and bases phrase that ever fell from the lips of an American President, "too proud to fight."

And, God help us, that Mexican belief and Mexican contempt seem about to be again justified and strengthened.

For Mr. Wilson, having again very properly started to use the armed forces of the United States to intervene to protect American communities from invasion and American citizens from being slaughtered on the soil of their own country, by running to earth the villains guilty of these crimes, has suddenly halted our troops at the command of Venustiano Carranza and ordered the American army to retreat.

The only battle fought in this disgraceful expedition was the treacherous ambush and massacre of our soldiers at Carrizal by the troops of Carranza.

The only achievement of the whole mobilized army of the United States is to retreat, without the chance to strike a blow, before the threats of a villainous and braggart Mexican chief.

The only returns made to the United States for the invasion of its territory and the murders of its citizens are the naked and maltreated prisoners contemptuously driven across the bridge at El Paso and the mutilated bodies of our dead soldiers, trapped at Carrizal, and scornfully flung down at the feet of their comrades on that same bridge of shame across which the living remnant were jeeringly driven.

You heard Mr. Wilson publicly declare the other day that he was in a fighting mood and ready to fight when it was necessary to protect the honor and dignity of the nation and the rights of Americans.

We can only say that we most anxiously hope the United States will never again have a President who falls into Mr. Wilson's kind of a fighting mood.

Why, God save the mark! What could be done in the way of bitter insult and outrageous wrong to provoke a patient people to fight which these treacherous assassins and faithless liars and boastful braggarts, from Carranza to Villa, have not wreaked upon the poor victims who were our very own kindred and entitled by every obligation of brotherhood and citizenship to our protection or else to our swift and implacable punishment of the savages who bloodily and brutally tortured and murdered them?

To what ghastly and horrible lengths of outrage and murder must these cruel beasts go before such a fighting mood as that of Mr. Wilson can be persuaded to fight?

Citizens, for now over three years Mr. Wilson has assumed the full control of our relations with Mexico.

The counsel of your representatives in Congress has not even been asked.

The Senators and Representatives of the United States have had no more voice in these high and grave matters of state than have the children who play in the schoolyards of Washington.

Two armed expeditions into foreign territory have been made without the advice or direction of the Congress.

The whole army of the United States is now on foreign soil, without either a declaration of war by the Congress or the advice, consent or mandate of the Congress.

We charge and affirm that such a stretch of the executive authority and such neglect and disregard of the authority and prerogatives of the Congress is an impeachable violation of the express mandates and prohibitions of our Great Charter.

We charge and affirm that the President has usurped a control over the war-making power of the Congress which is a violation of the express direction of the Constitution, conferring and fixing the powers of each branch of our threefold government.

We affirm that it is the high duty and the constitutional obligation of the Congress to put an end to this unlawful condition, to this usurpation, and that it should, as a part of its duty and obligation, take into its own hands the discussion and the decision of this question of shameful submission or of armed and effective intervention in Mexico, for the protection of the rights and the lives of American citizens and the restoration of peace and order in that wretched country.

Senators and Representatives, your fellow-citizens look to you to do your duty, to fulfil your obligation, to assume your rightful authority, to inaugurate a policy that will save us from this shameful and disastrous retreat from Mexico and this shameful and disastrous submission to insult and dishonor.

The army is being withdrawn from Chihuahua just as the fleet was withdrawn from Tampico and Vera Cruz.

The object for which the army was sent to Mexico has not been accomplished, just as the object for which the fleet was sent to Mexico was not accomplished.

Our flag was not saluted at Tampico, and Villa has not been captured by Pershing's punitive force.

American soldiers and sailors have been killed and American pride has been humbled in absurd and abortive expeditions that began in bravado and ended in fiasco.

Never before, citizens, never before has our flag gone forth flaunting to be brought home trailing in the dust.

Never before, citizens, never before have our people had to hold company with scorn and to walk with contempt as a familiar and to wear shame as a garment.

Never before, citizens, never before have those who were glad and proud to be called Americans had to shut their eyes to the present and for their only consolation to turn them proudly upon the past or hopefully to the future.

Never before, citizens, never before have our fathers' sons sat down to eat dirt and to be spat upon and mocked and jeered as cowards too base to fight.

And do you men in Congress—you, you whom we citizens put in your seats of authority and rightful rule—do you mean that we Americans shall continue to be mocked and jeered; that the bright flag which flies yonder above your heads shall have all its glorious story stained with shame; that this America, this country of ours, this dear native land of ours, shall be the byword and scorn of an insulting and abusive race of mongrels whom our fathers met with but half their numbers and bent them to their knees on every glorious battlefield from Buena Vista to the walls of Chapultepec and Mexico?

Senators and Representatives, assume your rightful powers and make EFFECTIVE intervention in Mexico.

Let our dear flag no longer impotently fly above the heads of brave soldiers who are not allowed to fight and above the white hearts of feeble cravens who forbid them to fight.

Let our glorious Stars and Stripes stream in the free breeze as the inspiring emblem of firm protection for American rights and American lives, throughout the world.
